SALEM CITY TREASURER

May Have to Keep Set of Books

Surety Company Bond is Objected to

Ways and Means Committee Sweep With New Broom

In Salem's municipal affairs, the question has arisen: What is the need of having a city treasury? This query has been suggested by recent developments, with respect to the management and keeping of the city's funds. The unusual condition was disclosed during the past month. At the regular annual meeting early in January, when the reports of the city officers were received, City Treasurer Moir was not present, but his report as to the finances of the city was presented by Jos Baumgartner, cashier of the Ladd & Bush bank, where the city's funds are deposited. The report was referred to the committee on ways and means, which desired to check over the books of Treasurer Moir. Application was made at the bank for the treasurer's books, when it was learned that there is no account as between the city of Salem and Mr. Moir, as treasurer, but that all of the transactions relating to the city's finances are had directly between the city and the bank. At a subsequent meeting of the council Treasurer Moir filed his official bond in the sum of $5000 with the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, of Baltimore, as surety. Exception was taken by some members of the council to the connection of the bank, which was referred to the committee on ways and means, and it is understood that this committee will adversely report upon the instrument at the council meeting tonight, and recommend that the bond be not accepted. The provision in the bond to which objection was made is that which states that the surety company will not be held liable for the loss of funds on deposit in the bank.

There is no irregularity charged or reflection suggested in the investigation and inquiry is being made by the council, but it is the desire of the members to have the affairs of the city in such tangible shape that the accounts of the different funds may be inspected at the pleasure of any one desiring to do so.

The matter will receive further consideration of the members of the council at the regular meeting tonight.

Mr. Moir's Statement.
City Treasurer Moir was seen, and says: "There is no difficulty. The former bond was approved by Ladd & Bush. This year that firm suggested that I get a bond of a surety company, as they wished to avoid too frequent applications to go on bonds, and they agreed to stand the expense. The clause objected to is that which releases the company for losses by failure of a bank. For the pay the city gives me I have not felt able to keep a set of books. The treasurer should be paid enough so as to keep a set of books, and handle the funds of the city, as the county treasurer does." Mr. Moir has not been in the employ of Ladd & Bush since January 15th.
